Answers to Your Homeowner Questions

The Home Owners Association Office gets many questions about how to deal with everyday issues around the community. Here are the guidelines for who to go to for different services

- * Emergencies, such as flooding, broken water mains, storm damage, snow emergencies:
 Call the HOA office(317-251-7861) or the emergency number after hours(317-698-6435)
- * Power Outages, Internet service breaks, land line phone outages, trash pickup: Call the service provider like ATT, Spectrum, AES, Republic Trash, etc.
- * Strange or unusual activity, criminal activity, uninvited solicitors: Call 911
- * Contractors like plumbers, electricians, deck repairs, etc.: Call a qualified and licensed independent contractor. The HOA office does not recommend or maintain a list, so ask your neighbors, friends, and/or websites like "Angi", "Nextdoor", etc.

The HOA owners website can help you deal with questions:

By going to the Windridge website (www.windridgecondos.com) and clicking the Owners tab (you need the password, which you can get from the office, or an informed neighbor), you will find a variety of selections such as:

A) Do I need approval for replacing/staining or painting my deck, changing my landscaping, lighting or something structural?

- B) What condos are for sale in Windridge?
- C) Rules & Regulations
- D) Board Business

E) Forms & Requests and much, much more. If the website does not provide the information you need, the Management Office will be happy to assist you.

DNR Warns Indiana Residents of Invasive Species

The Department of Natural Resources has asked Indiana residents to be on the lookout for two invasive species that have currently been sighted in the state.

The Spotted Lanternfly is native to China, India, Vietnam, North Korea, and Japan. The first US sighting of this unwanted visitor was in 2014, and the insect now seems to be making its way across the country. Don't be fooled by the apparent beauty of the insect as the Lanternfly poses serious dangers for orchard, grape and logging industries. The Tree of Heaven appears to be a preferred host tree. DNR suggests if you spot the Lanternfly, you kill it immediately. Look for evidence of egg laying in sheltered locations or in crevices on trees or outdoor objects. You may report any sightings to DEPP@dnr.IN.gov.

While most of us associate Kudzu with our southern states, this invasive vine has recently been spotted in Indiana, and the Department of Natural Resources is trying to eradicate it as quickly as possible. Known as the vine that "ate the south," the plant was originally brought to the United States from Japan to help with soil erosion. However, residents quickly learned the vine could grow as quickly as a foot a day, and just as quickly could take over shrubs, plants, and open areas. Kudzu poses a serious risk to native vegetation and the forest ecosystem. The leaf of the vine resembles a bean leaf. A single leaf is composed of three smaller leaflets, and the young plants are often hairy. To report a Kudzu site, contact kcote@dnr.in.gov

Books in the Woods

Our Windridge lending library, Books in the Woods, recently celebrated its first anniversary. By all accounts, it is a hit with our residents and guests, as well as an occasional delivery driver.

Whether you are looking for an enjoyable read for your autumn days on the patio or searching for books to tide you over in the long days of winter, you will find lots to choose from when you visit the library just across from 5111 Hawks Point Road. Two visitor benches allow you the opportunity to sit and browse selections before making your final choice. You are welcome to return the books you pick, share them with a friend, or keep them for your own collection. If you have books to donate, feel free to place them in the library. If you have several books to share, contact Maribeth Ransel at marjoeransel@live.com and she will arrange to have your books picked up at your home.

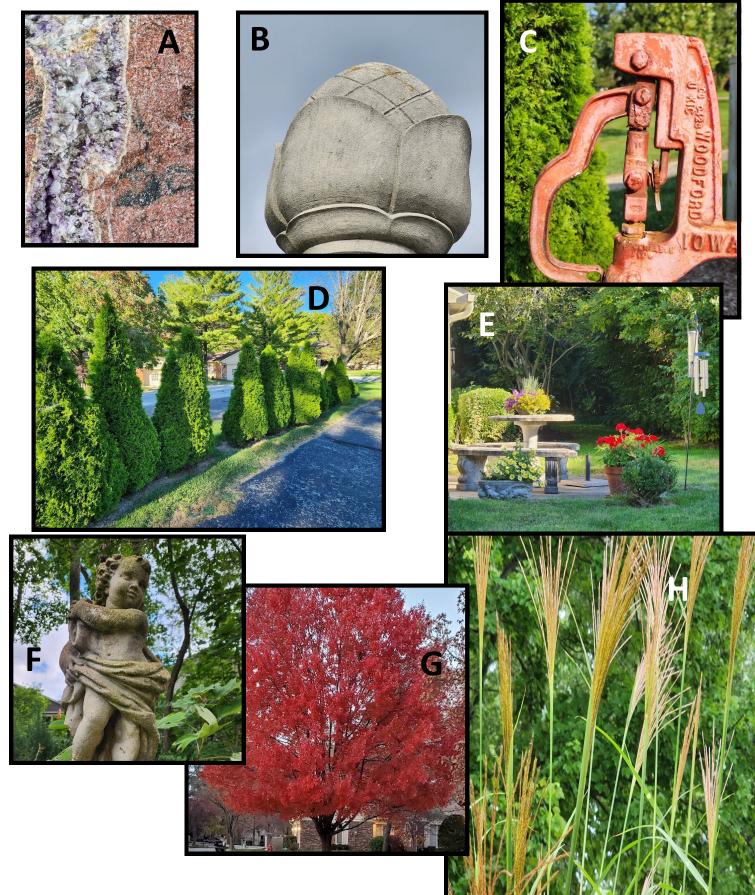

Thanks, once again, to Rosanne Taylor and Ed Ripperger for making it possible for us to have Books in the Woods, and to Doug Beyers for his excellent craftsmanship and donated hours to give us a library that will bring us pleasure for many years to come.

Where in Windridge? - Give the address or descriptive location of the pictures on the next page. Some pictures were taken in different seasons. Turn in answers to the office or put in the mailbox or to Mary Ellen and Keith Stahl at 5243 Fawn Hill Terrace. All those with 8 correct answers will be put in a drawing for a gift certificate to Culvers. Collaborate with your neighbors. Deadline is November 15th.

Concert in Windridge Park

It was a perfect evening for a concert on September 17, when bluegrass band Touch of 'Grass entertained about 40 neighbors. They played all kinds of music, from The Kingston Trio to Pure Prairie League and Chuck Barry. It was a great evening of music and neighborhood connection.

From "The Board of Directors"

- Remember, your board are "volunteers" giving their time and experience to make Windridge a better place to live. New members will be voted in at the annual meeting in December. Give them your support as they carry out their responsibilities.
- Recently, the Board completed a review of the HOA guiding documents. The Rules and Regulations received a significant update. Please use the new version available on the HOA website or in hard copy at the office, or soon in your tube.
- Note -The official version of all guiding Windridge HOA documents are on the public and Owners portions of our website: www.windridgecondos.com. Remember, to access the Owners portion of the website, get the password from a neighbor or the office.
